

1

Numeral Chapter Opening with Dropcap

“Inspirational opening quotes at the start of a chapter are very popular, but you don’t have to have one if you don’t want to.”

—A. Famous Person

Dropcaps are customary in the first paragraph of a new chapter. This sort of opening is more common with non-fiction books. Now follows a bunch of nonsense Latin filler text. Tus denis ipidips ustecte mporita volo tem in consed es este et dolore evero tem dustia vellumet, asin rerum, nisci reria destest, aliquaspriet volupti omniminit volores sit harcim lam exceari bereperio. Ut experro bea aut a et am eum volo maiorem oleces iunt ad moditatem aut etus et eos pre, sus evelloreri quodi beat.

Henis equis maxim quas corio expellut pa et ventoreperem nullam, sequibus, ex excearu mquamus sum sitas sant facest accatemporro mo int, qui volupta tiossit lique derrovi digeni ipsaped qui omnimin et ento exerupta quam rem.